

Endangered Species Act

Overhead view of Castroville, Monterey County, California, showing the locations of the two elements of this project.

Element #1 is the Crane St. Park. The yellow outline shows the approximate extent of the irrigated area. Note that the property has residential development on three sides. The fourth side moves downslope to an agricultural run off ditch before transitioning to farmland. The project location is already developed and, combined with, the size of the parcel and surrounding uses it is extremely unlikely that the parcel will provide any habitat value to any endangered species.

Element #2 is the North County Recreation and Park District's Recreation Center. This element is completed surrounded by intensive urban uses.
